RADIUS LIMITS

TRUCK OPERATIONS

Only trucks transporting poles and logs to a railroad or sawmill may travel beyond the 35-mile limit after November 1st. Exemption beyond the 35-mile limit from centre of operations was originally extended to trucks hauling pulpwood and other wood, logs and poles; but not finished or semi-finished lumber. Warning is issued that it is a serious offence not to comply with regulations requiring that the name of the owner and registered address of the truck be painted on either side of the truck body in letters and figures an inch high. A check is to be made shortly to make sure these orders are being observed.

This war has yet to be won. We could lose it.

The time has come to fight with everything we have... with our hearts and minds... with our working energy... with our DOLLARS. We MUST buy Victory Bonds. We must dip into our savings to buy them—pledge our future earnings to buy them—pare down our living standards to buy them. We are fighting for our lives.

VICTORY LOAN PASSES THE HALF-WAY MARK

Ottawa, Oct. 29, 1942.

Enterprise, Blaimore:
Following is the latest information on Victory Loan before you go to press.

Subscriptions to Canada's Third Victory Loan yesterday totalled $458,258,306 half way through the eighteen-day campaign to raise the minimum objective of $750,000,000. Wednesday's orders brought in only $43,674,000, approximately $8,000,000 below the previous daily average.

W. A. SHIELDS,

Dominion Public Relations Section,
National War Finance Committee.

As we go to press we learn that Frank-Blaimore's drive for their $60,000 quota in Canada's third Victory Loan has reached $45,350, passing the 75 per cent mark.

Hillcrest-Bellevue reached their objective of $45,000 on Wednesday night but won't stop at that. Coleman is still a little behind their allotment of $75,000.

THEY ALSO SERVE

Since the beginning of time, women have given their menfolk in answer to the call of their country at war. In this war, Canadian women have been called upon for the first time in history to serve beside their menfolk as soldiers of the Canadian Army. From coast to coast, Canadian women have stepped forward to serve—$500 of them as of July, 1942. This personnel of the Canadian Women's Army Corps is doing a job that has already won them recognised standing as an important and integral part of the Canadian Army itself.

Other books on order will be announced later.

NATIONAL SELECTIVE SERVICE

Important changes are being made frequently, regarding legislation affecting the manpower situation in Canada. This is necessary, due to the rapid change of conditions created through the war and its drain on manpower and resources. To most people the rapid changes are confusing. When in doubt as to your own personal case, consult your local Selective Service Officer.

These Selective Service offices have been set up throughout Canada to assist employers and employees in the carrying out of legislation which affects them, in order to aid production and conserve manpower, and to bend every effort in the prosecution of the war.

Use the services of these Selective Service offices, and you will receive every attention and courtesy.

Do not move from place to place, quit your work, join the Army, or become employed until you have consulted your local Selective Service office; otherwise you may be caused unnecessary inconvenience.

The loss of time from work is a loss to the war effort, and an injustice to the fighting forces.

IT ISN'T FUN—IT'S SABOTAGE

Rochester, N.Y., Oct. 23.—Apropos of Halloween, Superintendent of Schools James M. Spinning addressed this open letter to the city's 38,383 students:

"Letting the air out of tires isn't fun any more. It's sabotage.

"Scraping windshields isn't fun this year. Your government needs soap and greases for the war.

"Carting away property isn't fun this year. You may be taking something intended for scrap, or something that can't be replaced because of war shortages.

"Even ringing doorbells has lost its appeal, because it may mean disturbing the sleep of a tired war worker who needs his rest.

"I know," he concluded, "America can count on you."

THE FUTURE OF NAZI LEADERS

Nazi leaders (those who have not committed suicide or been murdered) will be adequately dealt with by the Allies after the war. The less prominent German criminals, who have not been killed by friends of their victims before the war-ends, can probably be most satisfactorily punished by whatever German government takes office after the overthrow of the Nazi regime. Nothing remotely approaching ideal justice is possible. Anglo-Saxons are poor exponents of the art of butchering civil populations.—Professor Wallace, principal of Queen's University, Toronto.

NO EXTRA TEA FOR PARTIES

No allowance of any of the rationed commodities—sugar, tea or coffee—is made for charitable organizations desiring to raise funds by entertainments or social affairs. Although there has not been a great number of special applications for sugar, tea or coffee for such purposes, all have been refused by the officials of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

MINING INSTITUTE TO MEET NOVEMBER 18-20

The annual western meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy will be held this year in Vancouver on November 18th to 20th next. The programme has been arranged, with the main design of provoking discussion and the interchange of opinions and ideas to further the war effort in connection with the expediting of mineral production, and in particular of the strategic and critical minerals.

It is expected that it will be attended by the Metals Controller, representative respectively of the Dominion department of mines and resources, the Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia departments of mines, and the Ontario Mining Association. The president and other prominent members of the Institute from eastern and central Canada will also be present.

On the second day of the meeting, the sessions will be held jointly with the B.C. Chapter of the American Society for Metals, at which addresses will be made by distinguished visiting metallurgists from the United States.

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

The first heavy snow of the season fell here this Thursday, blanketing the earth several inches deep.

After spending a two weeks' army leave with his parents here, Jack Labrie returned to the R.C.A.F. at Saskatoon.

Herbert Fisher, relief agent at the local C.P.R. station while C. J. Bundy was in hospital in Pincher Creek, has gone to Warner.

Mrs. Cyril Easterbrook is a patient in hospital at Pincher Creek. Mrs. William Cochrane had a turkey hen steal off and hatch out a lively bunch of poults recently. With a bit of extra care, she hopes to raise the young birds.

The recent snowstorm caught a lot of the farmers with their crops still not threshed. So, for all concerned, here's hoping for a burst of sunshine. A large crowd gathered in the Masonic hall on Wednesday evening to do honor to Mr. and Mrs. James Lote, who have operated the Cowley telephone central for eight and a half years. Entertainment for the early part of the evening was in the form of progressive whist, with prizes going to Mrs. Frank Webber, ladies' first; Mrs. W. Blizson, consolation; Casey Casselman, gents' first; Malcolm McMillan, consolation. Dick Alexander was master of ceremonies. After partaking of a dainty luncheon, Mr. and Mrs. Lote were presented with a beautiful silver tea service, with C. J. Bundy making the presentation speech, to which the guests of honor neatly replied. A lively dance of a few hours followed, with music being supplied by Mrs. James Smith, Junior, and Arthur Tustian.

Mrs. H. T. Halliwell, of Coleman, who has been a patient in the Holy Cross hospital in Calgary, is expected to return home tomorrow night.

Dan Gray, one of the oldest of the old timers left in Southern Alberta, is reported failing in health at Pincher Creek. Dan is over the 90 mark.

How A British Pilot Saved A German Who Was Shot Down

In marked contrast with the enemy's habit of machine-gunning defenseless airmen is this act of chivalry enacted by a British fighter-pilot during a raid over Malta. It was mentioned in a recent dispatch from that famous island in these words: The pilot saw a German fighter aircraft shot down and the enemy pilot bled out into the sea. He threw his rubber dinghy from the cockpit, and when it hit the water the German was able to scramble into it and was then saved by an R.A.F. launch. In making this gesture the British pilot knew that he was throwing away his own chance of survival in the event of being shot down himself.

Cat Was Crated In An Airplane Shipped To Australia

Somewhere in Britain early this year, an airplane was crated—and with it a cat.

Two months later when the crate was opened in Australia the cat was still alive, crouching in a corner terrified of the light, covered in grease and almost too weak to stand. The crate was deck cargo and the rain driving through interstices collected in the fuselage of the plane and provided drink.

For food the cat licked the grease from various parts of the machine. Some of the duralumin parts from which the protective covering was removed suffered severely by corrosion. —Australian Newsletter.

A clergyman in Britain recently said: "We have been pleasure-loving people, dishonoring God's day. We have preferred motor travel to church going—now there is a shortage of fuel oil. We have ignored the ringing of church bells—now the bells cannot ring except to warn us of invasion. The money we would not give to the Lord's work is now taken from us in taxes and higher prices. The service we refused to give to God is now conscripted for the country."

Commercial Travellers To Spike Idle Rumor

Commercial travellers—some 40,000 of them—will be enlisted immediately into a plan to "spike idle rumors and silence rumor-mongers," delegates of the six commercial travellers' associations in Canada have decided.

The campaign against "loose talk," granted already the approval of Ottawa, pledges commercial travellers first, to refrain from relaying rumors and, by precept and example to discourage the spreading of them by others. Theme of the campaign is: "You're never sorry for what you don't say."

WHISTLER WAS LATE

It was seldom that Oscar Wilde encountered anyone who could match his own supreme, never-failing, self-assurance. But in James McNeill Whistler, the artist, he found one man who could. When Wilde was planning his wedding he invited Whistler to attend. Came the hour for the ceremony and the artist had not arrived. Just as he was about to proceed to the altar, the shaky bridegroom received a telegram reading: "Am detained. Don't wait." It was signed "Whistler."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

NOVEMBER 1
THE CHRISTIAN VIEW OF MARRIAGE

Golden text: Let marriage be had in honor among all. Hebrews 13:4. Lesson: Genesis 1:27, 28; 2:18-24; Jeremiah 29:4-6; Matthew 19:3-6; John 2:1-5.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 128.

Explanations and Comments

The Companion for Man, Genesis 2:18-24. Our first lesson in July from the first chapter in Genesis gave us the first account of the creation; today our text is from the second account, Genesis 2:4-24. Having created man and placed him in Eden, the Creator declares that it is not good for man to be alone, and resolves to provide him with "a help meet for him," that is, suitable for him. Note that we have two words, a noun and an adjective here, and not our one word "helpmeet."

The Hebrew phrase is literally, "a helper as his counterpart." This is the true idea of woman's relation to man, his counterpart, and whenever this is realized in marriage, God's purpose is being fulfilled.

Unlike in the first account, beasts and birds are created after man, and are designed for man's companionship. They are brought to him to name them. But they are not sufficient to solace his solitude and therefore a woman is created from one of the man's ribs. Matthew Henry quaintly says that woman was taken out of man's side to suggest her equality with him; not out of his left to imply inferiority, nor out of his head to suggest superiority, but out of his side, implying companionship and equality. The man perceives that this new creation is a part of himself, and accordingly names her "woman," wife-man.

Verses 24 may be an old saying dating from remote times, when the husband went to the house (tent) of the wife and joined her clan. Still the passage may be merely the narrator's remark.

"The creation of one man and one woman in the ideally perfect state of Eden implies that monogamy is the ideal of the married life. Polygamy and divorce were later accommodations to man's 'hardness of heart.' But from the beginning, (that is, in the original purpose of the Creator) 'it was not so'" (Mt. 10:4, 5).

CHAPTER III

Static quiet came between them, and Anne Lowry felt within herself the nerve-taut desperation. Erich Kruger once again showed. The lonely road, the dark forest it bisected, seemed suddenly a hostile spot. The night might hide watching eyes.

"Anne, I beg you—help me," he said. "I am a stranger here, no man for the mountains and woods. If I was ever your friend—"

He broke off and this time was silent, letting the implication play its suggestion in the mind of Anne Lowry. He was reminding her of a debt, one he perhaps had never meant to ask repaid, and it was such an enormous debt that payment should be forthcoming without demand. Anne had never forgotten.

It had been more than three years ago, when her father lay ill, dying of fever, and all hope had been gone. And then Erich Kruger came. Anne remembered how he had brushed aside the inept doctor who could do nothing against the unknown fever.

Erich had said, "There is one man who can save his life. My father—"

And Anne would never forget that unauthorized flight, that merry dash to Venezuela, nor how at the night's end Doctor Kruger had found a faint spark of life and fanned it with infinite patience and singular skill until Drew Lowry lived.

"All that Erich Kruger has done is reminding Anne that there was a debt—a debt that now could be paid."

Anne said, "How can I help you, Erich?" And she saw how that made him relax. He thrust the gun into the pocket of the rough denim jacket he wore.

"You have a house near by?" he asked. "I live at the hotel, at Halfway House. Father and I operate it, you see."

"A hotel?" He was thinking about it. "It might do. I could be a guest. They would not look for me as a guest—except for my clothes. Perhaps you could get me some utility attire. Anne, I would not be long with you. Once the hue and cry had died down, I shall make my way to Mexico. There I will find friends who will help me get back home, to South America, where I can join my father and be safe. I want only to be safe, Anne."

His voice broke, recovered quickly. "I have gone through so much, suffered so greatly."

A question loomed gigantic in Anne's mind. What great trouble was he in? Why was he hunted? Had he committed some ugly crime? She could not bring herself to ask seeing how desperate he was, and he did not mean to tell her.

"I'll take you to the hotel, Erich," she said. "Did I know what you do. You will be safe there, for as long as I can make you stay."

She straightened around to drive on. The mountain road seemed looser and looser. The lights of the hotel came into sight. She reached out and touched Erich's arm and he started violently and dropped his hand to the pocket holding the gun. Then seeing only her she sheepishly grinned.

"Halfway House," just ahead," she told him. "Only six employees are there. The guests do not start coming until tomorrow. I imagine everyone will be abed by now, but I'll go on ahead and see. It will be best if the help does not see you in those clothes. Wait here, Erich, and when I appear in the doorway you will know it is safe to come."

"That is good, Anne," he said. "I am grateful to you."

He opened the door and got out into the darkness. He started to close the door then held it. "You are not plan to betray me?" he asked.

"There is no one more at the hotel than I have said," Anne told him. "And no telephone. I could not not betray you if I wished."

His eyes, sunken and feverishly bright, appraised her. "No, you would not give me up to police," he said. "There is a policeman here. Anne caught herself up on that. It wasn't exactly true, but it was not a policeman within miles and miles. There were the Forest Rangers over at Squaw Creek, there was—Steve Hayes."

"An idea came to you," Erich said. "An idea, yes," she admitted. "I had forgotten, the Forest Rangers. They watch out for strangers. You will have to be very careful. Erich."

He nodded jerkily, said, "I will wait for the signal."

Anne put the car into gear again and drove on to Halfway House. She parked the station wagon in the drive, then crossed the front yard and entered the lobby, closing the door behind her. Her father was slouched in an armchair by the radio which was bringing in a Hollywood show, and smoking his pipe.

"Dad, are the others gone to their rooms?" she whispered.

"Why, yes, Mrs. Bailey was last to go. She was here with me until half an hour ago." He eyed her anxiously. "Hello! Something's up. What is it?"

"Prepare yourself for a shock, Drew Lowry," Anne said, forcing her voice gay. "I have an old friend out here. You'd never guess who it's Erich Kruger!"

He stared disbelievingly. "Erich Kruger here?" Oh, no. Erich's thousands of miles from here, Anne, he said. A shadowy look darkened his pale thin face. "I know that for certain, Anne. You see, I kept it from you but Erich Kruger—"

"Erich Kruger," said a gruffer voice from the doorway, "here he. He hopes he is welcome."

Anne whirled and saw that he had silently opened the door and had listened. He had followed her to the hotel—not trusting her. Lamplight was bright on his face, and now she saw how he had changed. He no longer was the youthful and carefree airline pilot, something of a time had hardened his face, thinned out his mouth, put a metallic brightness in his eyes. He closed the door behind him, came slowly into the big bare-timbered room, a squarely built and not tall man, a dark suit and denim pants and jacket and heavy-duty shoes. He smiled, but it was a mechanical smile.

"Or am I not welcome, my old friend?" he asked. "If that is so, I shall go my way."

"No, no!" Drew Lowry exclaimed. He rose and moved to Erich, holding out his hand. "I could never turn you away, Erich. What's mine, is yours." The police—

"We will not speak of that at once, Erich."

"Then I will say how good it is to see you again. The sight of an old friend can be as satisfying as the sight of a father—almost as pleasant as seeing a sweetheart." Erich put his arm about Drew Lowry's stooped shoulders. "You look better than three years ago, Herr Lowry. And the frau is so much prettier."

His use of the German words made Drew Lowry look anxiously about. He said, "Sit in that chair by the window, Erich. It is away from the window."

"Is it possible someone could see me in here?"

"Passage but not probable," Drew Lowry said. "Anne, switch off some of the lights. . . It will be cooler."

Anne obeyed, and as she moved back from the light switch she heard Erich's insistent query: "Who could see? There are neighbors?"

The older man shot Anne not a meaningful glance, then reluctantly said, "Erich, there was a policeman—a forger, I think it is—once in the looking about. He asked questions about how many people were here at Halfway House. I think it possible he knew you were somewhere in the vicinity and might have come here."

Erich nodded jerkily. "It is possible," he said dully. "I had to borrow a car after I crossed the Canadian border. I abandoned it close to the town where I met Anne. That was early this morning, so they would know that I am somewhere close."

He lifted his hands in a pitiful pleading gesture. "If you could know what torment I have suffered, you would understand why I must not, no, cannot, Herr Lowry—" One hand extended to Drew Lowry, then the other to Anne. "Frau!—Try to imagine yourself in my place. Think what it means to be hunted like an animal."

Unnoticed, the radio program had given way to an eleven o'clock news broadcast. As Erich paused, the newscaster's voice filled the room. The word had a jolting impact.

"Canadian authorities announce that the German aviator who escaped yesterday made a daring escape from an Alberta Province prison camp is still at large. It is thought that the man has succeeded in reaching the United States, where police and C.I.R. agents—"

Drew Lowry went and switched off the radio. The sudden quiet seemed explosive. Anne saw a chalky white gleam on Erich's face. She had not guessed until this moment, although that morning she had heard of a news broadcast telling of the escaped prisoner, that Erich Kruger was that sort of a hunted man.

Squaw Creek Ranger Station stood in a forest clearing between the highway and the turbulent creek, a neat row of silver-gray buildings including the administration building, a machine shop, a warehouse, and three houses. It was marked by a big sign bearing the Forest Service five-point emblem.

At eleven o'clock, Steve Hayes went into the dispatcher's room in the administration building to check weather reports. The reports were monotonously the same: wind, no rain, no clouds, clear sky, no wind for timber fire. There was a fire over in the next district, and the radio operator had been handed over a report on it. The fire was being held; it was nothing to worry about. The dispatcher removed the phones from his ears.

"Sheriff Hardy phoned a couple of minutes ago, Steve," he said. "He wants us to keep our eyes open for—"

"What is it?"

"An idea came to you," Erich said. "An idea, yes," she admitted. "I had forgotten, the Forest Rangers. They watch out for strangers. You will have to be very careful. Erich."

He nodded jerkily, said, "I will wait for the signal."

Anne put the car into gear again and drove on to Halfway House. She parked the station wagon in the drive, then crossed the front yard and entered the lobby, closing the door behind her. Her father was slouched in an armchair by the radio which was bringing in a Hollywood show, and smoking his pipe.

"Dad, are the others gone to their rooms?" she whispered.

"Why, yes, Mrs. Bailey was last to go. She was here with me until half an hour ago." He eyed her anxiously. "Hello! Something's up. What is it?"

strangers. He thinks that escaped German aviator is wandering about the creek territory."

Steve Hayes nodded. "I've been keeping my eyes open, and if he's here, I'll get him sooner or later," he said. He looked suddenly troubled. "The sooner, the better. I hate to have a desperate mug like that loose in my district—with the country dry like this. Given time, hunted men find the same ideas in the fingers—an incendiary fire to throw off pursuit. Then there's the devil to pay."

Teacher: "With what weapon did Samson slay the thousand Philistines, Tommy?"

Tommy: "With the axe of the Apostles."

Sutor: "Sir, I would like to marry your daughter."

Father: "Young man, do you drink?"

Sutor: "Thanks, but let's get this other matter settled first."

The newly-married couple were just leaving the registrar's office when the wife remembered she had registered her age as a year older than she actually was.

"Oh, never mind," replied her husband, "you'll get the auld age pension a year sooner."

"Dad: 'Well, what kind of grades did you make in your finals?'"

Son: "All right in everything but one study, and in that I am like Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln."

Dad: "Why, how's that?"

Son: "I went down in history."

Here's Quick Relief from SINUS PAIN

3-Purpose Medicine Helps Clear Out Congested Sinus Areas

One fast way to get relief from torturing sinus pain is to clear congestion from nasal passages and give sinuses a chance to drain. A few drops of Vicks Vapo-Nol in each nostril is usually enough to bring this comforting relief.

3-PURPOSE MEDICINE

Va-tro-nol is so effective because it does three important things: (1) shrinks swollen membranes of the nose; (2) helps clear out pain-causing congestion and (3) soothes irritation.

Vicks Vapo-Nol is found, try it!

CANADA'S HOUSEHOLDERS

Keep in line with timely economy.

Crown Brand Syrup in addition to its other uses, is being so generally used to supplement sugar, that the demand has increased tremendously — so that sometimes your grocer may not be able to supply you. But you'll understand why.

A great deal more "Crown Brand" is being produced this year but it cannot be expected to meet a demand resulting from a war shortage of millions of pounds of sugar.

The supply of Crown Brand Syrup, like other things, must be shared. Don't hoard — buy normally. With the help of your grocer, every effort is being made to keep you supplied with this delicious syrup.

May Be Built In The Heart Of London After The War

A great airport, surrounded by a spacious War Memorial park, may be built in the heart of London as part of the post-war reconstruction scheme. Already the blitzed areas—half-prepared by Hitler—are being examined by government surveyors with a view to their development in this way. When peace comes it will be found that the importance of air transport has multiplied many times over during the years of war. It is felt, therefore, that a central airport must have a prime claim in any reconstruction plans for London.

EDUCATION AND RELIGION

Thoughtful people have become seized with the conviction that education and religion cannot safely be divorced. The one should embrace and include the other. In our altogether praiseworthy precautions, as religious peoples, to divest ourselves of even a semblance of authority on the part of any church over the educational system, we have fallen into the other danger of separating formal education almost completely from religious influences. Education, in becoming secular, has discovered that it is non-religious.

This fact might have passed almost without a protest but for the war. In those dark days when Dunkirk had fallen, and the very existence of the British people was in hourly doubt, the feeling grew into prayerful utterance that God was our only refuge. The pomp and circumstance of life fell into the background as utterly insignificant. The eternal values stood out as the only real things for which man lives. It was out of this conviction, universally experienced, that the urge has come to draw closer to the verities of religious truth and religious experience. Across the country in Canada, in the United States, and in Britain itself, the discussion is going on as to the wisest way in which religious teaching can be introduced into the schools and colleges. The time is ripe for a great forward movement.

Without entering into details as to the procedure, one may postulate two convictions which should wisely be observed. The first is that all the Protestant churches and sects, without exception, should combine in this work. If an acceptable body of material for the schools cannot be agreed upon, the leaders of the churches would be placed under the most severe criticism at the bar of public opinion. But I am convinced that there is wise statesmanship in the churches to achieve this end. The second is that the teachers of the schools—specially selected where necessary—should be the instructors in this field. They have learned the art of teaching, they have the confidence of their pupils, and they are, generally speaking, of deep religious convictions. Under these conditions there will be a notable advance in Christian education.—Dr. R. Wallace, principal of Queen's University, former president of Alberta University.

MINERS OF THE CROWS' NEST PASS URGE UNION-MANAGEMENT COMMITTEE

We are in receipt of the following statement from local Union 7295, United Mine Workers of America:

At a meeting of our local Union No. 7295, U.M.W.A., held on October 18 in Blaimore, the miners resolved to write this open letter to state our position, and to clear up some misunderstanding that exists in the public mind, resulting from statements appearing in the press from time to time regarding the developing coal shortage which give the impression that the miners are laying down on the job. It has been stated that the cause of the present shortage is due to absenteeism among the miners. These charges, while perhaps not deliberate falsehoods, are nevertheless untrue.

We can state without fear of contradiction that the real cause for the failure of the mines in the Pass area to reach capacity production can be traced to the failure of the managements of the various mines to establish and maintain proper working relations with the mine workers. The policy of the operators has resulted in an accumulation of grievances, and bottlenecks in industry remain as an impediment to the total war effort of our country as a consequence. Miners deplore the fact that in this, the fourth year of the war, the mining industry is far behind most other war industries in Canada in failing to develop modern and effective employer-employee relations for the purpose of maximum production.

We realize that in this people's war no sacrifice is too great and, as workers, know that we have the greatest stake in the destruction of Hitlerism, for we know that unless victory over the Fascist Axis is achieved, life will not be worth living.

We realize that coal is vital to the production of basic war materials, and we are ready, as we have always been ready, to answer our country's need, be it in the armed forces or in the army of industry. We are proud of the fact that one quarter of our membership is in the several branches of the armed forces.

We have repeatedly made proposals to remedy the existing state of affairs, but up to date the operators have refused to co-operate and co-operation is the only solution. The proven solution is already in operation to some extent in Canada, as it is in other parts of the United Nations. That solution lies in the establishment of genuine Union-Management Production Committees which have no other purpose but to correct all grievances that have a tendency to create bottlenecks, and to utilize the practical experience of skilled men in each phase of the mining industry.

This necessitates a change in attitude by both the operator and the worker. No one should profit at the expense of the national emergency, or seek at such a time as this an advantage over the other. Management and worker should work together, and the present formula, where we supply the brawn and the management the brain, and where no attempt is made to utilize the proposals and suggestions of the workers, is the chief impediment to maximum production. Instead of being treated as citizens of a democracy engaged in a life and death struggle for existence, the attitude of some employers is such that it is best expressed in the following: "The management of this mine is none of your business, your job is to do as you are told."

A management trained for the express purpose of extracting a maximum of profit, and accustomed to treating workers as of less importance than machinery causes the worker to suspect that their patriotism and the present situation is being utilized by the management for increased profits.

Unless employers are willing to adopt a different attitude during the present situation, when strikes are unlawful, when workers are prevented from leaving work of war importance and wages are set by government regulations, morale will deteriorate and production will suffer. We have records showing many shifts lost due to mismanagement. It is in fact a daily occurrence to see miners sent home because of lack of materials at the working place, full chutes, insufficiency of timbers, etc. This alone is bad enough, but the disinterest displayed by the officials over these conditions is so apparent that it discourages the workers and is to a great extent responsible for much of the absenteeism that our industry is suffering.

Our proposal of Union-Management

Committee is the official declared policy of the Canadian government. It is merely a means whereby a group of workers, experienced in every phase of the mining industry, can meet the management on an equal footing for the express purpose of discussing ways and means of correcting conditions that tend to slow up production or tend to create dissatisfaction among the men, to deal equally with inefficiency, whether on the part of the management or the men, with but one guiding principle, to meet the needs of Canada's total war effort.

The question of production during the national emergency is the concern of each and every one of us. We are more than willing to do our share, because we realize that nothing matters but a speedy victory over the Beast of Berlin.

"Give us this day . . ."

Hitler—disposer of life and death . . .

Hitler—to whom millions must pray for daily bread!

A madman's dream? On the contrary. In Europe it is already a reality.

A Hitler victory—and he holds the bread of the world in his grasp. Canada's fabulous stores of food flow overseas to garrison his throne. His starvation specialists strip this country bare—like Russia, Greece, and Poland. And Canadians starve—like Russians, Greeks, and Poles.

In Greece men died in the streets—clutching useless money in bony fingers.

Your money will be useless, too—if Hitler wins. It will curse you then, if you withhold it now.

What you have you must use NOW—in the supreme effort of free men to defeat and dethrone a tyranny that menaces all mankind.

Sharing With England

IN RECENT MONTHS Canadians have begun to experience many of the difficulties caused by the shortage of food and other items important to our way of living. Rationing so far has not been used for many commodities, but in spite of this, the standard of living in most Canadian homes has changed in the past months. These changes have caused some inconvenience, but no real hardship, and for the most part have been cheerfully accepted. We are still able to live comfortably, and even though our purchasing is curtailed we can sit down to bountiful meals and we have fuel, warm clothing and other things essential to health and comfort. Most of us believe that there is still much we could give up, should the necessity arise.

British People Remain Fit

It would be well for us here to remember at all times that many of the shortages we encounter are due to shipment of material to England. Others are due to the fact that ships normally used to bring imported commodities to Canada, are now transporting materials of war. In England, the people are commencing the fourth year of the war. That they are physically fit, and able to carry on their gigantic undertakings is in great measure because of the efficiency and imagination of the Food Minister, Lord Woolton, and his staff. It is said that an uneasy stomach will soon set a man grumbling, and there are few people in England who are not thankful for the way in which their national larder has been stocked and shared. In 1939 England imported over fifty per cent. of her food, some of it from countries now occupied by the Axis, yet by a tremendous re-organization of supply and distribution it has been possible to keep the British people adequately fed during the war years.

Praise For Food Ministry

In a publication issued recently by the British Ministry of Information it was stated that this has been accomplished through the far-sighted policy and organization of the British Ministry of Food, and the generous help of the Dominions and the United States, who have made their own sacrifices to send food to Britain. It further states that because of this the people of England will turn to the offensive "fighting fit". When we consider what the shipment of essential materials from here mean to the people of Britain, we can be proud that we can share with them in the sacrifices necessary to the winning of the war.

How to feed the war worker has become an important question in thousands of Canadian homes. Our first suggestion is going to be something you may feel that you, personally, can do nothing about. But don't dismiss it on that account. You alone may feel helpless. But you and your friends, and your friends' friends are public opinion; which can still do plenty. So the first suggestion is that all war workers in a good sized plant should be sold at cost one good nutritious meal during his working period, whatever that is. Surveys conducted by "Nutrition Services" show that industrial workers meals served by a plant-operated cafeteria on a no profit basis are far better than those served by concession caterers. Agitation by a worker's committee might rectify the situation if it's wrong in your plant. And another thing, for those very necessary between meal snacks, the best and most telling stimulants are milk, fruit juices, (and that includes tomato juice) or cocoa—no soft drinks. It is inconceivable that a general demand for milk or fruit juices, in place of soft drinks, would be ignored. Now if your plant isn't one of the ideal ones—and some of them are, you know—some plants serve the sort of meals mother simply doesn't know enough to produce; but if yours isn't one of them you'll have to fall back on the lunch box.

Here are some rules that will make that lunch box meal a proper one:

1. See that it contains these three ingredients—protein, a vegetable (not potato) or fruit and milk won't give you any trouble. And neither will protein if you remember that our best sources of protein are—meat, fish, eggs, cheese and dried vegetables (like beans).
2. A thermos flask of hot soup or cocoa may just hit the spot. This is purely a matter of taste. The necessity of one hot drink has been shown in recent experiments to be just another superstition. But if your war worker likes one, it obeys rule two, which is palatability.
3. Arrange for the lunch box meal to be as fresh as possible. Don't make it up the night before. And do wrap everything carefully in wax paper to prevent drying.

Another tip—be sure your sandwich fillings are moist but not wet. Avoid soggy sandwiches on the one hand and dry ones on the other. Use whole wheat bread.

YUGOSLAVIA'S ARMY

Hither, so it is reported, is determined to put a stop to the operations of Yugoslavia's guerrilla armies. In view of the fact that such resistance is said to be tying up no fewer than 375,000 Germans, Italians, Bulgarians and Hungarians who are badly needed elsewhere, his resolve may be easily understood.

LONG VOYAGE

A New York newspaper recalls that 100 years ago the corvette, St. Louis, arrived at Norfolk after a voyage lasting three years and 79 days, sailing 75,000 geographical miles. The modern meaning of a corvette is very different, but a corvette was originally a small sailing ship without a quarter-deck.

WE'D LIKE TO TELL EVERYBODY ABOUT ALL-BRAN'S "BETTER WAY"

Says Mr. C. Boyer, Valleyfield, Quebec: "For many years we've enjoyed Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, the delicious cereal that keeps us regular... naturally. In muffins, ALL-BRAN is delicious... we have them almost every day. And ALL-BRAN is a grand cereal for breakfast."

Why don't you try ALL-BRAN's "Better Way" to correct the cause

if you are troubled by constipation due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in your diet? But remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like cathartics. It takes time. Eat it regularly and drink plenty of water. Get ALL-BRAN at your grocer's in two convenient size packages, or ask for the individual serving package at restaurants. ## The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.
By Alan Maurice Irwin

Where is that man who referred to me and other writers who look things in the face as "you alarmists"? I'd like to take him on a little motor trip—to the Gaspé Peninsula!

That is to say I'd like to take him for that trip but for one thing—it would be a shame to waste gasoline on him. And motor trips are out—except for the ninnies with their heads buried in the sand who still run their cars, "just for a little jaunt on Sundays."

"A little jaunt on Sundays." We are fighting a people who would shoot them for that. So, just because we are not a people who shoot amateur traitors, they blithely disregard signs that even the dullest common man can read, squander life-saving gasoline, wear out badly needed rubber and complacently increase the spread of the only portion of their anatomy ever likely to be impaled upon a German or Japanese bayonet.

Some of them, on the long, strategic road that follows the St. Lawrence even drive their headlights full on after dark.

And all this, mind you, after the news has been released that enemy submarines have been active in the Gulf of St. Lawrence!

A black-out has been ordered on the banks of the River St. Lawrence and extending five miles inland.

This has not been done for fun, it has been done because lights on shore enable a navigator to make his way to the point he desires to reach and equally because lights on the shore silhouette any vessel—even a little fishing boat—between the shore and an enemy raider.

So you see this has not been done for fun. It has been ordered because Canada, whether we like to admit it or not, is in the war zone. It has been ordered because lives have been lost on the broad bosom of the mighty waterway, the banks of which Lady Beasborough once described as "arms that reach out to welcome visitors to Canada." There are some visitors Canada does not welcome—hence the need for a black-out.

Shortly after the black-out, was ordered, indignant complaints reached the authorities that it was not complete. The answer to this was fairly simple. Many of the farmers living in the country surrounding the river do not read the newspapers, do not listen to radio and did not understand how close the war has come to Canada's shores. They understand now because the authorities quickly devised a plan for notifying every villager, every farmer, of the black-out order and of the reasons for it and the necessity for its observance.

The foregoing paragraph, however, grant no abolition to the motorists who drove along the highway with their headlights on, headlights that, everytime the road rounded a cape pointed out like twin searchlights across the black waters of the gulf. These were just careless—if so criminal a disregard for the lives of Canadian allies for the protection of Canada can be called careless—motorists who thought more of their own safety and more of the silly "necessity" for speed that would not permit them to dim their lights and proceed at a pace calculated not only to assist the war effort by maintaining the darkness but also to assist it by conserving tires and gasoline.

And it is not only in the black-out areas that such "careless" motorists mar the otherwise bright pages that Canada is writing in the history of these awful war years.

On the Sunday preceding Thanksgiving Day and on Thanksgiving Day itself, you saw for yourself streams of private automobiles that choked the highways surrounding the larger cities. What you thought about it I can guess. What I thought about it, no newspaper can print.

Apparently such selfishness—is something that only public opinion applied privately can remedy.

This column, the forty-second, that has appeared in these pages, brings to an end the series known as "The Individual Citizen's Army. It comes to an end because this individual citizen no longer will have the time to write a column a week. As a matter of fact, under King's Regulations and Orders governing the Canadian Army, he will not have permission to write for publication, because this "old sweat" puts on the uniform again with "Canada" on his shoulders to enable a younger man, who is fit, to move on to one of the fronts on which we all are sure the Canadian Army will soon again victoriously take up the torch thrown to it by falling hands a quarter of a century ago.

Good luck, Alah! You have done a good job for Canada with your column, "The Individual Citizen's Army." You have told us what we needed to know—it has been quite a task for you and we all appreciated your writings. Sorry you can't keep it up but we're doubly proud that you'll wear the uniform again. May all good fortune go with you—you're a real citizen.—Editor.

DEPLOING RUMORS

George W. Spinney, in deploring the rumors that are spread to harm Canada's war effort and urging that these be promptly scotched, deems rumors as usually being nothing more than somebody with big ears listening to somebody with a big mouth. Those are unflattering categories in which no intelligent or loyal person wishes to be included. The point is obvious.

A curious transplanting of the Mosaic is found in Canada's west, where at Edmonton stands a Moslem Mosque, raised to the greater glory of Allah and his prophet Mohammed? The mosque and some of the strange forms of worship are recorded in the Associated Screen "Did You Know That?" movie short.

How soon can WE end this War?

This is the people's war... it is our war. Each and everyone of us must contribute our utmost to help speed the day of Victory!

If we fail in our duty to lend to the limit, we help make this war last longer.

Let us resolve to back the new Victory Loan to the utmost of our ability. We, on the home front, must strain every fibre of our fighting men may have overwhelming superiority in arms and equipment to crush our still powerful enemies. The dollars we lend NOW will make this possible sooner.

Price Board Says More Rationing To Be Expected

Moncton, N.B.—Extension of consumer rationing will likely follow inevitably upon curtailed production of civilian supplies to release manpower for war purposes, Donald Gordon, chairman of the prices board, declared before the annual meeting of the maritime board of trade.

Outlining the board's program of production curtailment, Mr. Gordon laid down this 10-point "preliminary statement of policy":

1. Use of human and material resources for provision of goods and services for the civilian population will be systematically reduced to the minimum required for the health, efficiency and morale of the nation.
2. Curtailment will proceed in an "orderly and progressive manner, having due regard for the speed required for the war program."
3. The prices board will proceed with curtailment of control of production, supply and distribution. Transfer of labor will be handled by the director of national selective service.
4. Advisory committees will give the board the benefit of practical experience of the various industries.
5. First moves will be the "elimination of obviously non-essential items and standardization and simplification of continuing lines."
6. The board will try to act on all non-essential production on a basis that will avoid discrimination, but it will not be able to institute parallel moves in all industries at the same time.
7. In the concentration of production in individual industries, manpower requirements in different areas will play an important part, along with the need for power and other services in short supply.
8. It may be necessary for the board to effect a scheme of pooling profits where different businesses within an industry have been curtailed in different degrees in the production of the same article.
9. Maintenance of production for export "will have regard for Canada's commitments and moral obligations to the United Nations or friendly foreign countries."
10. "An extension of consumer rationing is likely to be an inevitable consequence of curtailed production... consumer rationing is essentially a plan to ensure equitable distribution of available supply rather than any attempt to enforce arbitrary deprivations."

UNREST IN EUROPE

Uncertainty Sweeps Country From Norway To The Balkans

Berne, Switzerland.—All Serbia was reported under martial law as a tide of unrest and uncertainty continued to sweep occupied Europe from Norway to France and the Balkans. Martial law was decreed by the puppet Serbian government at Belgrade, said a Budapest despatch to the Basel Nachrichten, Swiss paper, after the Nazi military commander in Serbia, Gen. Bader, announced numerous arrests had been made because insurgents had attempted to organize a revolt against occupation authorities.

The Basel Socialist newspaper, Arbeiter Zeitung, recently reported that the Gestapo had put to death 500 to 600 Serbs who plotted a revolt. The decree declared that even the defeat in war had not had so serious consequences for the country as had the attempt at revolt.

Swedish newspaper correspondents reported from Norway, according to the Swiss telegraph agency, that the Nazi puppet premier, Quisling, had ordered 25 more clergymen to leave their homes as a result of a pastoral letter read in Norwegian pulpits Sunday calling latest Quisling measures a new attempt against "liberty of the church."

The period to Nov. 1, private advices from Unoccupied France said, represents the extension of time set by Berlin for fulfillment of its labor demands for 150,000 volunteer workers.

It also is the period, informed French observers said they believed, which will demonstrate whether Laval could hope to cling to his position as chief of government in the face of persistent, although thus far scattered, opposition.

WAR PRODUCTION

Washington.—The Pacific war council analyzed the war production of U.S. and the United Kingdom for September and October, and members said it looked promising and encouraging.

LETTER FROM MERRITT

Victoria Cross Winner Writes From Nazi Prison Camp

Belleville, Ont.—Lt.-Col. Charles Cecil Merritt of Vancouver, first Canadian to win a Victoria Cross in this war, said in a letter received here by his wife, that he enjoyed the Battle of Dieppe, "even if it didn't last long."

"I have recovered from my wounds," Col. Merritt said in his first communication from a German prison camp. "Our quarters are sufficient."

The 33-year-old grenade-throwing lawyer whose name was placed at the head of 178 Canadians receiving decorations for valor in the nine-hour assault on the French coast town last Aug. 19, stressed the need for food and clothing and advised Mrs. Merritt to get in touch with the Red Cross society for particulars.

Col. Merritt commanded the South Saskatchewan regiment during the fighting and his message confirmed published reports that he had been wounded in the attack.

RUSSIAN OPINION

Thinks Germany Cannot Be Defeated From The Air

Moscow.—A Russian aviation expert says the Allies are all wrong if they think they can defeat Germany through air bombing.

Major-General Zhuravlev says bluntly that wars are won by armies that are millions strong with both ground and air equipment.

"As he put it: 'Aviation without a ground force is not only incapable of achieving victory on this or that front, but even of creating such a front.' He points out that Germany couldn't defeat Britain with air power.

FOR VICTORY

Co-operation Is Necessary Says New Soviet Envoy

Ottawa.—Close co-operation of all the United Nations "is the necessary condition" for victory, Fedor Gusev, first minister to Canada from the Soviet Union, said in an address accompanying the presentation of his credentials to the governor-general.

He said the Soviet Union, "in co-operation with Canada and the other United Nations," is fighting "a titanic struggle against the enemy of all liberty-loving people of the world."

Says Empire Has Withstood Greatest Test

London.—Field Marshal Smuts declared that the British commonwealth of nations stands "unshaken by storms and setbacks" as "the heart of the defence against the most terrible onslaught ever made on human rights and liberties."

In his address to the joint houses of parliament, the prime minister of the Union of South Africa declared that the words about "the approaching breakup of the great world group we form," are "folly and ignorance... Misreading of the real signs of the times"—and in certain quarters—"what wishful thinking!"

He said: "It is true this greatest human experiment in political organization; this proudest political structure of the time; this precedent and anticipation of what one hopes may be in store for human society in years to come; this commonwealth; is being tested as never before in its history."

"But is it not standing the test? Is not this free and voluntary association, is not this world-wide human co-operation today holding together more successfully than ever before under the most searching test?"

"Knowing the dangers and temptations we have had to face, the stresses and strains imposed upon us, nothing has been more remarkable to me than the cohesion of this vast structure under the hardest hammer blows of fate."

"We have suffered, we are poorer, we shall be poorer still. We have had heavy setbacks and an exceptional run of bad luck. Is it a wonder that in the fourth year of this war there may sometimes come moments of disappointment, of fatigue, and occasionally even a sense of frustration?"

"But still this great commonwealth remains the heart of the defence against the most terrible onslaught ever made on human rights and liberties. It stands unshaken by storms and setbacks."

"The people of this island are the real heroes of this epic, world-wide drama; and I make my most tribute to their unending unbreakable spirit."

BUYS VICTORY BONDS

Subscription Comes From Prisoner Of War In Germany

Montreal.—A subscription to Canada's third Victory Loan "right from the heart of Germany" was reported by Montreal loan headquarters. The subscription came from P.O. B. D. Campbell of the Royal Canadian Air Force, who now is a prisoner of war in a Nazi camp.

FO. Campbell, whose mother, Mrs. R. D. Campbell, lives in suburban Montreal, recently wrote his mother to invest some of his savings in bonds. He added that he had requested Lloyds bank in England to transfer his savings there to Canada so his mother could buy more bonds. Mrs. Campbell said her son had more than $2,000 invested in Victory Bonds.

REGULATE FISHERIES

Ottawa.—Joint investigation of the fisheries of the Great Lakes by Canada and U.S. with the objective of common regulation for the management of these fisheries, was recommended in the report of an international board of inquiry. The report, announced by the Canadian fisheries department, follows two years' examination by the board.

These Axis officers marching off under the glistering bayonets of British army guards are German and Italian airmen captured during the intensive raids on Malta where the defenders took a heavy toll of raiding air fleets.

Fighters Of Two Wars Compare Notes

In the course of a tour of inspection of Royal Canadian Air Force units overseas, Air Marshal W. A. "Billy" Bishop, V.C., victor over 72 Huns in the last war, dropped into the pilots' room of a Canadian fighter squadron to meet a man whose victories are still very fresh in his mind. The smiling lad in front of the air marshal is Pilot Officer G. B. "Scotty" Murray of Halifax, N.S., who, about a week before, had been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for his work during the Dieppe raid.

Pilots The St. Roch

Constable Patrick Farrar of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police appears at the wheel of the St. Roch, stout little ship which completed the voyage from Vancouver to Halifax through the famous northwest passage. Never before had such a trip been made.

COAL SITUATION

A Shortage In Western Canada Is Expected

Winnipeg.—Findings of a special committee appointed to deal with the question of a reported coal shortage in western Canada have been outlined in a letter which the council of the Winnipeg board of trade recommended be sent to federal government officials and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce at Montreal.

The board said the letter which states that "the situation in western Canada with reference to the coal requirements is likely to be desperate this winter unless immediate steps be taken to increase production," should be sent to Prime Minister King, Labor Minister Mitchell, Finance Minister Tuley and Elliott M. Little, director of national selective service.

The board suggests that experienced miners, at present in the armed services or engaged in war work, should be temporarily released in order to help with the work in coal mines.

More Air Power Is Required To Achieve Victory

London.—There are, it is believed here, fewer than 200 prime targets Allied bombers need to destroy in France and Germany in order to render Hitler so vulnerable the Allies could roll their army over him and end the war by next fall. These targets comprise Nazi Germany's chief war industries, rail communication and rolling stock. In short, they represent the source of much striking power and the means of moving that power into action.

In order to achieve this destruction quickly and thereby prevent great prolongation of the war, British and American bomber forces based in this country would have to be heavily increased.

How much air power would be needed to carry out this program?

Obviously, no attempt can be made to give detailed figures. But it can be said that if these two forces were trebled within the next couple of months, the Allies could achieve enough by spring so that an invasion army could go into operation.

Of course, it takes a lot to the imagination to talk about trebling the bomber forces when we don't know what the present fleets are. Still, authorities who do know the figures will recognize that this would be a feasible expansion.

This concentration of air force in Britain would be made:

1. By current production in both countries;
2. By transferring aircraft from other activities which could spare them for this major operation in western Europe.

In this second category might fall some of the submarine scouting now being carried on by aircraft with the expenditure of a maximum amount of labor for a minimum of results. The ideal place to get a submarine with bombers is at the building base and not after the U-boat has started to roam the seas.

Emphasis must be placed on speed in providing bomber reinforcements. Hitler should not be allowed to use the winter months to repair the grievous damage he has suffered in the Russian campaign.

Humanity Laws Of Warfare May Be Repudiated

New York.—German propaganda took another ominous step along a course which, although still open, might lead toward Axis repudiation of the accepted laws of humanity in warfare under the pretext that the Allies first violated the codes.

The Berlin radio gave circulation to statements attributed to the semi-official German commentary, Deutschland Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, that Germany, Italy and Japan have proof "that on the enemy side formal orders were given for warfare contrary to humanity."

The statement added the threat: "The day will come eventually when those responsible will be called to account for their actions."

The outburst followed United States assertion that captured Japanese airmen would be punished for inhumanities during bomb raids on Japanese soil, and German charges that the British forces attacked a dressing station for wounded on the North African front.

Reuters quoted a Vichy broadcast of despatches from Stockholm as reporting that Germany and her associates had conferred on plans to denounce the Geneva Convention agreements on Red Cross and war prisoners on the grounds that the 1944 convention had been violated by the United Nations.

The German diplomatic commentary spoke bitterly of the blockade of Germany which it purported to be "mass murdering."

The Berlin radio said the Japanese official gazette had published a law permitting factories to apply for prisoners of war workers.

There have been reports that some Americans captured in early stages of the Pacific war had been put to work on docks and such projects, but this was the first intimation that Japan might put them to work in factories.

The Hague convention of 1899 provides that prisoners of war may be used as workers provided their tasks have nothing to do with military operations, and that they shall be paid at the same rate as troops of the country into whose hands they have fallen.

HEPBURN RESIGNS

Will Be Succeeded By Gordon Conant As Premier Leader

Toronto.—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, whose colorful political career and caustic comment often brought him about the federal government and at times injected him into international prominence, resigned as head of the Liberal government of Ontario. The 43-year-old party leader, in office for two terms since June, 1934, was succeeded by Attorney-General Gordon Conant. Mr. Hepburn announced in a statement that he would retain the cabinet portfolio of provincial treasurer "for a short time, after which I shall retire from public life."

M. Conant, sworn in as premier by Lieut.-Governor, Albert Matthews, will remain as attorney-general. The new premier is 57 years old, a former crown attorney in Ontario, for Ontario county, and was first elected to the legislature in 1937.

Mr. Hepburn's resignation came with the same startling suddenness that has characterized many of his political moves.

Mr. Hepburn will retain his seat for Elgin in the legislature while serving as provincial treasurer. His announced intention to retire from public life would imply his ultimate resignation from the legislature.

After issuing his statement Mr. Hepburn commented that he would not contest "any seat as a private member or otherwise."

He said that a year ago he asked his colleagues to select a successor but was prevailed upon to continue during the last session.

PUTS ON WEIGHT

London.—One unit of the A.T.S. (British counterpart of the C.W.A.C.) has collectively put on a ton and a half of weight since joining up. But, said Gen. Sir Ronald Adam, adjutant-general, it isn't fat but good sound flesh.

The men who died on the beaches of Dieppe did a job we couldn't do. They gloried in their achievement, but when those who lived return, let none of them meet a man who refused to do his duty here.

Most of us were sleeping when thousands of our men stormed the beaches of Dieppe. But we could sleep easier next night if we knew that our dollars had helped equip them to face those terrible odds on a foreign shore.

Now there's another Victory Loan and Jim is expected to subscribe.

"Rock bottom!" was Jim's first thought. "We're on rock bottom. Just can't find the money!"

He's thought some more since. And he's decided it can be done. Jim says he doubts if Merritt lost much time wondering if it could be done when he crossed that bridge at Dieppe.
